Smells of nectarines on the cusp of ripeness, but not yet there. Sharp, lime-soused stone fruit. Green apples, grey mountain-stream pebbles, white marbles, cold smooth rockiness. A floral smell-taste-flavour that reminds me of Achillea millefolium. A little bit of a wild child, like the wild flower you find growing in impossibly rocky soil halfway up the mountain; delicate beauty bravely blooming, tucked into the scree. (TC) Drink 2023-2031

Stony and intent. Incredibly taut, clenched, polished-metal minerality. The structure of this is like a gleaming steel sculpture against a grey sky, glistening with thunderstorm rain. White pepper, cardamom, tight lime and an almost-not-quite-there trace of smoke. Bones and stones – a wine that seems to be tracing a glacial river path down the sheer side of a rocky mountain. You can almost taste that green-white tumble and roar of snow water. (TC) Drink 2024-2030

So much more towering and tensile than the 2018! Lime juice wrapped in steel wreathed in smoke. So structural, it's almost like swallowing a magnificent suspension bridge that rises up above you out of the fog. Tastes like the ancient gleam of pewter, the soft-hard intent and ambition of platinum. There's a glimpse of green peach, a glimpse of sorrel. But right now this wine is a relentless focus of piercing, hard-lined geometry. And I don't know if there might be small component of skin contact, but the texture is so powerfully tactile that it's almost as if there is a smudge of tannins. (TC) Drink 2024-2032

2020 Binger Silvaner Quarzit trocken

Score: 16.5

Smells of cold green apples and lemony goat's curd. Deliciously ripe but still super-crisp and crunchy: green apples, yellow pear, mirabelle plum and borage leaf dipped in lemon sherbet. Almost fizzing with energy (metaphorically speaking, not literally). Sheer delight in a glass. This tastes of spring. (TC) Drink 2021-2023

The Silvaner Binger Quarzit smelt of green apples; the Riesling Binger Quarzit smells of golden apples. And orchard blossom. Fresh, breezy, with a tiny bit of petillance on the tongue. Whippet-thin but not bony. Plenty of mouth-watering white fruit. (TC) Drink 2021-2024
